

Animal Bytes

Discover the Museum's collections through the eyes of the people who study and care for them, and tell us your experiences through the animals that inspire you.

The Museum of Zoology is home to more than its wonderful collection of animals. It is alive with scientists, staff and visitors. The Animal Bytes project explores the human side of the Museum, with curators, staff, visitors and others sharing their experiences through the museum specimens that have inspired them. We want to collect as many stories about the collections as we can, and this is where you come in.

Is there a specimen in the museum that fascinates you? Are you amazed by the size of the Finback Whale? Do you love the feathers of our Birds of Paradise? Do you find the Giant Spider Crab just a little bit scary? We would love to hear from you! Fill out the form below and post in the comments card postbox, or email your response to umzc@zoo.cam.ac.uk, to be included on the Animal Bytes webpage!

Your Name _____

Animal/specimen _____

Your Animal Byte story _____

Would you be interested in giving us feedback on the museum displays for future development projects? If so, please provide your email address below:

The University Museum of Zoology, Cambridge (UMZC) is committed to protecting your privacy. The information that you have supplied will be used for UMZC purposes only. The UMZC will not share your details with any other company or institution without your consent.